Administrative/Biographical history

The Welsh Women's Rights Committee for Wales (WWRC), also known as the Women's Rights Committee for Wales, grew from one of the resolutions passed at the 'Women at Work' conference held in November 1974. Their main objective was to bring about a change in attitudes about the nature and role of the sexes. Linked to this, the Committee was also interested in broader social issues, and was involved in other campaigns, such as the Campaign Against a Criminal Trespass Law in 1977, and were affiliated with National Campaign for Civil Liberties in 1976.

Scope and content

Correspondence, publications and newsletters of various organisations such as National Campaign for Civil Liberties and Equal Opportunities Commission, press releases on various issues, papers relating to conferences held in 1974, 1976, 1978, 1979, minutes of meetings held between 1976 and 1985.
