Administrative/biographical history

The Vale of Glamorgan Borough Council was formed in 1973 under the Local Government Act 1972 and became formally operative in 1974. The council possessed powers of a District Council and succeeded the older authorities Barry Urban District Council, Penarth Urban District Council, Barry Municipal Borough Council, Cowbridge Rural District Council and the greater part of Cardiff Rural District Council. The Council was replaced in 1996 by the Vale of Glamorgan County Borough Council. The new authority covered the same area with minor additions including part of the former Ogwr/Bridgend District Council.

Rate valuation books

The following records relate to rates valuation and amendments created by Barry Urban District Council, Penarth Urban District Council, Cowbridge Borough Council, Cardiff Rural District Council, Cowbridge Rural District Council (1894-1974) and the Vale of Glamorgan Borough Council (1974-1996). The records of all the former district councils (1894-1974) were used by the Vale of Glamorgan Borough Council in its rates valuation as part of its administration and no attempt has been made to transfer records for the district councils to other records held for these authorities. All volumes bore the reference 'VOGR [and number]'.

Most of the valuation lists and direction sheets were in use in routine administration in the treasurer's department of the Vale of Glamorgan Borough Council over a number of years and are heavily annotated and amended. All dates assigned to individual volumes should be interpreted as in administrative use up to the abolition of the council in 1996. Most valuation lists contain amendments. Direction sheets consist of amendments to the valuations.
