

SOUTH WALES AND MONMOUTHSHIRE TRADING ESTATES LTD

The Welsh Industrial Estates Corporation

The South Wales and Monmouthshire Trading Estates Ltd, was incorporated in 1936. Its task was to introduce diverse industry into Wales. In the same year 165 acres of land at Treforest (between Cardiff and Pontypridd) were purchased and the establishment of the first industrial estate in Wales began.

It expanded during the war and in 1945 the Board of Trade took control. The company changed its name to Wales and Monmouthshire Industrial Estate Ltd. Four new estates were built at Bridgend, Hirwaun, Swansea and Wrexham (co. Flint).

In 1960 the firm was taken over by the Industrial Estates Management Corporation for Wales and in 1966 the name was changed to the Welsh Industrial Estates Corporation.

DIEC 47/1	Upper Boat Power Station. Photograph showing the main steam supply to the Treforest Industrial Estate at the point where it left the (older) boiler house. The larger pipe carried the steam (outwards to the Estate) while the smaller pipe returned hot water after the steam had been used on the estate. [From the earliest days of the Estate (circa 1937) steam was taken from the South Wales Power Company's Upper Boat Power Station and distributed over some two thirds of the area of the Treforest Industrial Estate (all west of the main avenue) for heating and for use in industrial processes. The steam was carried at high pressure to four strategically placed de-superheating stations from which it was distributed to factories at lower temperatures and pressures. Some industries established at Treforest were big users of process steam and it's availability was a material factor in their location at Treforest. When the Central Electricity Generating Board, who took over the Upper Boat Power Station on nationalisation of the electricity supply industry after the War, gave notice that the station would cease to operate continuously, the Welsh Industrial Estates Corporation built it's own central boiler plant to feed steam into the distribution system. This plant was commissioned in the spring of 1963. When the Central Electricity Generating Board, who took over the Upper Boat Power Station on nationalisation of the electricity supply industry after the War, gave notice that the Station would cease to operate continuously, the Welsh Industrial Estate Corporation built its own central boiler plant to feed steam into the distribution system. This plant was commissioned in the spring of 1963. The CEGB having kept the station for intermittent use for a few years, finally demolished it in the mid 1970's and the site was acquired by the Welsh Development Agency (successors to WIEC) for extension land for the Treforest Industrial Estate] (1 photograph)	-
