INTRODUCTION

Aberdare Hall, Cardiff

Aberdare Hall was established by the University College of South Wales and Monmouthshire (later the University of Wales College, Cardiff) in 1883 for female students. Its foundation at a time when opportunities for women in higher education were few is testimony to the enlightened attitude of those behind its creation. The Hall owed most to the efforts of Lady Aberdare (1827-1897) and John Viriamu Jones, Principal of the University College 1883-1901. Jones and his wife Katherine took a keen interest in the establishment and management of Aberdare Hall (see Life of John Viriamu Jones by Katherine Viriamu Jones, London 1921). Lady Aberdare (second wife of Lord Aberdare) has received less attention although she was an enthusiastic proponent of higher education for women and took an active part in ecclesiastical, social and educational matters. She served as a member of the University College Council and Court of Governors.

The first Aberdare Hall was located in Keswick House, Richmond Road, Cardiff, opened in 1885 with nine students. The Hall developed separately from the University but personal and academic links remained strong. Aberdare Hall benefited from the talented service of its principals, notably Ethel Hurlbatt (1892-98) and her sister Katherine Hurlbatt (1898-1934). The present Aberdare Hall in Corbett Road was opened in 1895, designed by W.D.Caröe, and paid for by public subscription; the hall benefited from the donation of £2,000 by the trustees of the late Mrs. Emily Pfeiffer which was used to pay for the Hall library.

The history of the hall is set out in Aberdare Hall 1885-1935 and the history of the university in S.B. Chrimes, University College, Cardiff. A centenary history 1883-1983. See also The University of Wales. An illustrated history, ed. Geraint H. Jenkins (Cardiff 1993) and W. Gareth Evans, Education and Female Emancipation; the Welsh experience, 1847-1914 (Cardiff 1990).
