

THOROLD DICKINSON

[Extent 56 Boxes]

INTRODUCTION

THOROLD BARRON DICKINSON

Born: Bristol, 16 November 1903

Died: London, 14 APRIL 1984

Education: Keble College, Oxford.

After taking a degree in history at Oxford, Thorold Dickinson entered the film industry as an assistant to George Pearson, subsequently becoming a script-writer, editor and director.

His film credits include:

GASLIGHT (GB,1940), NEXT OF KIN (GB,1942), MEN OF TWO WORLDS (GB,1946), The QUEEN OF SPADES (GB,1949), SECRET PEOPLE (GB,1952), HILL 24 DOESN'T ANSWER (IL,1955).

From 1942-1943 Dickinson organised the Army Kinematograph Service Production Group and produced seventeen military training films. Dickinson went on to produce POWER AMONG MEN (IA, 1958) and supervised many short films for the United Nations, where he was chief of film services in New York from 1956-1960.

Dickinson was a member of the committee of the National Film Archive (1950-1956), Chairman Of The British Film Academy (1952-1953) and a member of the British Film Institute Experimental Fund Committee (1952-1956).

In 1956 Dickinson was appointed Senior Lecturer at the Slade School Of Fine Art, University College, London in order to start a unit for the Study Of Film [the first of its kind in a British University]. In 1967 the title Professor Of Film was conferred on him and in 1971 Dickinson retired as Professor Emeritus.

Throughout his career Dickinson was author of books including 'Soviet Cinema' (with Catherine De La Roche) and the semi-autobiographical work 'A Discovery Of Cinema' as well as many articles on film and the film industry.

Dickinson was a frequent jury member at International Film Festivals, acted as member of the board of the New York Film Council, consultant to the American Film Institute and President of the International Federation Of Film Societies.

Dickinson was married in 1929 to the architect Joanna MacFadyen.
