Note

John Henry Palmer, J.P., was an active Methodist and was involved in Sunday School work; he held offices in Walham Grove and Bethel United Methodist Churches, and was Superintendent of Barclay Hall Mission, Effie Road, Fulham. A fervent Temperance advocate, he sat on the committees of the West London Band of Hope Union and the United Kingdom Alliance. He was active in local affairs, serving on Fulham Vestry for several years, and was at one time a prominent member of Fulham Borough Council as a member of the Progressive Party. He belonged to the Fulham Liberal Party. He interested himself in many causes, both local and national, and was connected with a large number of organisations, including the Imperial Alliance for the Defence of Sunday, the National Children's Homes, and the Fulham and South Kensington Young Men's Christian Association. He was a trustee of the Fulham Waste Lands and Lygon Almshouses, a school manager, a director of the Walham Green Building Society, and supported Fulham housing improvement schemes.

DD/200 consists mainly of correspondence, cuttings, invitations and handbills connected with Palmer's involvement in these spheres, all of which have been mounted into 'scapbooks'. In view of the bulk of the material involved, some deviations from normal listing practice have been necessary:

(i) Listing

It has been impractical to list each item. The practice instead has been to give a block description for each 'scapbook', and provide separate entries for items contained inside which have been considered of particular interest.

In many cases items relating to the same subject are scattered over a number of pages. The practice in such cases has not usually been to list items individually, but either to give a block description with a list of relevant references, or to provide covering references when this seems more practical

John Henry Palmer has been referred to as 'JHP' throughout

(ii) Numbering

In many cases, volumes of pulpit notices, accounts, etc., have been re-used as scapbooks, and so items collected by Palmer have been pasted over the original information contained in the volumes. Where this is the case, each sheet in the volume has been paginated as in a printed book, and items pasted in have been given the page number, followed by an alphabetical sub-number. Therefore a single item pasted onto a re-used page would be given the page number plus the letter 'a'. Where the page was blank, a single pasted item has been given the page reference only, and more than one item pasted onto the same page would be alphabetically sub-numbered; the same procedure has been followed in numbering scapbooks which have not been put to any previous use.

14/99a	23 Dec. 1926	Letter J.H. Blackwell, 5 Glebe Terr., Easington, co. Durham to JHP Is grateful for cheque for miners' families relief fund. The people are almost delirious in getting back to work after the long strike, and the pits are in such a bad state that many miners have not yet started; others who have only started this week will have no pay this week end as the managers keep a week's wages in hand. All public relief has

DD/200/ 14/1-114 14/99a (cont.)		stopped since the mines are re-opened, and the miners cannot claim the 'dole' since the damage which prevents them re-starting work is due to the strike. The managers at Easington mine are doing their best and there is no bitterness, but at other mines, as at Horden [co. Durham] the managers are brutal and are taking full advantage of the clause that exempts them from paying the minimum wages for a month
