Records of Wallis & Linnell Ltd.,

Clothing Manufacturers, of Morley Street, Kettering.

Accession 1978/178

Frederick Wallis, born at Rothwell Lodge, Kettering in 1833, began work with a drapery firm at Nantwich, Cheshire before beginning his own business in 1855, manufacturing men's outer clothing from small premises in Ebenezer Place, Kettering. In these early days, he employed one cutter, three tackers, three machinists, three buttonholers, three chainstitch machinists and two pressers. In 1856 he was joined by William Toller, a Kettering draper and the business, known as Wallis & Co., moved to School Lane, Kettering.

John Linnell, born at Burton Latimer, was an apprentice to William Toller in Market Street, Kettering before moving to Manchester to obtain experience in warehouse work. In 1856, he returned to Kettering and entered the firm of Wallis & Co., becoming Frederick Wallis's partner when William Toller left. The business then became known as Wallis & Linnell.

The business soon expanded and a warehouse was opened in Birmingham, which became the firm's headquarters. Clothes made in the Kettering factory were sent to Birmingham to be sold. However, when Frederick Wallis died in 1885, John Linnell decided to centralise the business in Kettering and the Birmingham warehouse was closed. A fire at School Lane in 1864 seriously destroyed much of the factory, but enabled the premises to be rebuilt and considerably extended. Many extensions have been carried out at School Lane until the factory's closure in 1977.

Village factories were also opened in 1873 at Brigstock, in 1874 at Cottingham, in 1886 at Woodford and at Gretton in 1889. The Brigstock factory manufactures men's trousers only, however, the others manufacture all types of men's and boys outer wear. In 1924, a factory at Regent Street, Kettering was also purchased and equipped for the manufacture of clothing.

Frederick Wallis's son, Percy Wallis, joined the business in 1890. John Linnell died in 1916 and in 1920, his two sons, A.J. Linnell and H.G.B. Linnell, entered the business, becoming joint Managing Directors in 1945 when Percy Wallis died leaving no children.

During the Second World War, Wallis & Linnell Ltd. manufactured almost 100,000 garments for the W.A.A.F. and W.R.N.S. and 30,000 pairs of R.A.F. trousers as well as numerous officers' uniforms.

In 1966, the Regent Street premises were closed and by 1977, the School Lane premises were becoming too small for the Company, so, in June 1977, Wallis & Linnell Ltd. moved to Morley Street, Kettering. Today, these are the headquarters of the Company with other factories at Woodford, Brigstock and Blaenau Ffestiniog, Wales. Mr. A.J. Linnell remains the Company's Chairman and Mr. R. Harris is Managing Director.

The Company claims a record in that 101 employees over the years have given them over 50 years service. Wallis & Linnell specialize in the manufacture of men's and boys outer wear, sold under the brand name of Burleigh; clothes made include suits, evening wear, sports coats, blazers, raincoats, overcoats, overalls, trousers, uniforms and badges, sold at home and abroad.
