In 1821 Sir David Erskine of Cambo, Fifeshire, baronet, met and married Jane Silence Williams, a North Wales heiress, and thus became owner of the Bodlondeb and Pwllcrochan estates, centred on the parishes of Conwy and Llandrillo-yn-Rhos. After having the existing house demolished and rebuilt, the couple settled at Pwllcrochan. Sir David was an excellent landlord, who initiated a great deal of work on the estate to improve both land and buildings, to the benefit of his tenants. He died in 1841 and the Dowager Lady Erskine together with her six children, continued to live at Pwllcrochan. She and her eldest son, Sir Thomas, subsequently decided to have the house demolished again, and the Pwllcrochan which still stands was built in its place, though with considerable additions and alterations which were added later. Sir Thomas found that he needed to spend a considerable amount of time on his Scottish estates, so the family decided to sell the Welsh properties and move to Scotland.

Therefore in 1865, the Pwllcrochan and Bodlondeb estates, together comprising approximately 3,000 acres, were put up for sale, and realised something in the region of £20,000. The Pwllcrochan mansion, demesne and most of the adjoining lands were sold to John Pender, a Manchester businessman concerned mainly with promoting transatlantic cables. He intended to develop a seaside resort of select marine residences which would attract the affluent middle classes of Manchester and Liverpool. He was prevented from doing so by a financial crisis in his business affairs, occasioned by the breaking of one of the cables in mid-atlantic. To raise money for repairing the cable and laying another, he sold the Pwllcrochan estate to a consortium of Manchester businessmen, one of whom was Lawrence Booth, the architect. They formed themselves into the Colwyn Bay and Pwllcrochan Estate Company, divided the property into building plots, and imposed covenants on the purchasers which ensured that the character of the town would be that of a garden city.

One of the few lots not acquired by the Colwyn Bay and Pwllcrochan Estate Company was Pwllcrochan itself, which was bought by John Porter, who had been John Pender's agent, and who had converted the mansion into an hotel, under a lease from John Pender in 1866. It was to become one of the principal establishments in the town, attracting a wide variety of visitors. It remained the property of the Porter family until 1938, when it was sold to Rydal School.

John Merry Porter (1863-1942) had a lifelong involvement with Colwyn Bay; he was three years old when his father moved there from Manchester to be John Pender's agent. Having attended school at Conway, J.M.Porter was articled to Messrs.Farrer and Company of Manchester, where he trained as an architect and surveyor. After he qualified in 1886 he returned to Colwyn Bay and became a partner with Lawrence Booth and Thomas Chadwick, architects, surveyors and estate agents, who had formed their original partnership in 1876 to act as agents for the Colwyn Bay and Pwllcrochan Estate Company. A Colwyn Bay office was opened under J.M.Porter as the local agent for the Manchester Company and was responsible for many of the buildings going up in the new town. In 1905 the Manchester connection was severed and the firm practised as Porter and Hunter until c.1907 when Charles Ernest Elcock was taken into partnership. In 1912 the firm became J.M.Porter and Company, which name it retained until its dissolution in 1973.

In 1891 John Merry Porter married Catherine Hawksworth at St. Paul's Church, Colwyn Bay. They had three children, Graham Hawksworth, who was killed in action in France, October 1916, John Lawrence, who eventually joined his father in practice as an architect and surveyor, and Catherine Margaret, who married Norman Milne Harrop of Garth Gynan, Llanfair D.C.

J.M. Porter built a house for himself in Pen-y-Bryn Road, which he named Braeside, with some land attached where he bred pedigree Holstein cattle for a time. In 1919 he sold the house to Colwyn Bay Golf Club, to be the club house. He then moved to Girvan in Pwlycrochan Avenue, which was conveniently placed, near the Pwlycrochan Hotel of which he was managing director. After completing extensive alterations he renamed his house Braeside and remained there until his death in 1942.

In addition to his work as an architect and surveyor, J.M. Porter was much involved in the public life of Colwyn Bay and of the county of Denbighshire. In Colwyn Bay itself, he was a governor of Colwyn Bay County School and a trustee of the Canon Roberts Memorial Fund, the money from which financed the inscription of a plaque in St. Paul's Church in the Canon's honour. He was a founder member, with his brother James (a senior partner in the firm of Porter, Amphlett and Company, solicitors of Conwy), of the St. Trillo Lodge of Freemasons.

He was a member of the County Council from 1905 until 1931, and chairman in 1920, the year in which King George V and Queen Mary visited Denbighshire. During the First World War he acquired additional responsibilities: he was made a magistrate in 1914 and a member of the local committee set up to administer the Soldiers' Dependents' Fund of the Soldiers and Sailors Families Association, in the Colwyn Bay area. He was also a member of the War Pensions Committee and of the County Appeal Tribunal. Membership of the Council of Chartered Surveyors Institute for many years, testified to the respect in which he was held by his professional colleagues. His main hobbies throughout his life were breeding gundogs, particularly spaniels, and shooting.

In 1973 the partners in J.M. Porter and Co., - J.L. Porter, son of J.M. Porter, and Leonard Mosely, architect, who had joined the firm in 1920 and had become a partner in 1940, - both decided to retire, and therefore the business was closed. The Firm's papers came into the custody of Colwyn Borough Council, who subsequently deposited the bulk of them with the Clwyd Record Office.

The records of J.M. Porter and Company are of great interest for the history of the development of Colwyn Bay, as the Company was involved in it from rural village to thriving seaside resort. The large collection of architectural drawings and plans among the papers provides some indication of the number of buildings which were either designed or extensively altered by J.M. Porter and Company. These include St. Andrew's Church; The Presbyterian Chapel, Conway Road; the Baptist Chapel, Abergele Road; the cottage hospital; the crematorium; the town hall; the Post Office Buildings, the golf club; several schools and numerous private houses, both large and small. As estate agents, J.M. Porter and Company managed a large number of properties, both for sale and for rent, in Colwyn Bay and the surrounding area.

Turning to the records themselves, there are points to be made about several classes. All letter-books, financial records and diaries have been kept for the period up to 1920, after that date they have been sampled. In addition to the general series of letter-books, dealing with the everyday correspondence of the office, there are two separate series, for the agency work (the management of leased and rented property) and for Colwyn Bay and Pwllcrochan Estate Company business. All the early diaries belong to J.M.Porter, but it has not always been possible to attribute the later diaries to a particular person; where the owner of the diary is known, it has been noted. The initials E.W.B. refer to E.Whitfield Burnett, who is described as the oldest practising architect in the district, in a letter of 1926.

The general correspondence files appear to have belonged to the surveying department, and to have been compiled in a random order, relating to different subjects and different dates. The original method behind their compilation is now too obscure to reconstruct.

The largest section of the Porter papers is concerned with sale particulars, information cards and correspondence files relating to particular properties. These have been listed in chronological order under parish, except for Colwyn, Colwyn Bay and Llandrillo-yn-Rhos, which have been sorted alphabetically into streets, and then ordered chronologically for each street. If several properties have been mentioned, usually only the street name has been given, with a note to the effect that the individual properties are named in the document. Sale particulars listing properties in more than one street, or where a street name is not given, follow the list of streets ordered alphabetically. Many of the sale particulars have manuscript additions concerning purchaser, purchase price or other information; these notes have not been mentioned in the catalogue entries. Duplicate sale particulars have been transferred to the Clwyd Record Office, Hawarden, Gwynedd Archive Service and the National Library of Wales, as appropriate.

Covering dates have been given for the architectural plans and drawings, where these are known. Architects' names have been noted only if they were not employees of J.M.Porter and Co. If sale plans have become detached from particulars, or if the particulars are missing, they have been included in the plans and drawings section. Ordnance survey maps have been listed by edition and then in map number order.

J.M.Porter's personal papers have been included at the end of the collection, as they have very little relevance to his office business. They are concerned primarily with the management of the Pwllcrochan Hotel, and also with his personal affairs.
