166. 1801 15 Feb. COPY LETTER: Thomas Jones of Caernarvon to Col. Edwards. In opposition to the wishes of his fellow magistrates and the respectable people in Caernarvon, Mr. Edward Griffith has ordered the dragoons to leave Caernarvon.
167. 1801 17 Feb. LETTER: Lord Uxbridge of Uxbridge House (? to the bailiffs of Caernarvon). He contacted the Quarter Master General on receiving their letter. The Quarter Master has written immediately to General Nichols to secure the return of the troops to Caernarvon.

As soon as he received their letter he applied to the Duke of Portland's and the Adjutant General's offices pressing for the troops to remain at Caernarvon. He understands that Lord Uxbridge has made similar representations. He is pleased to find so many of the inhabitants of Caernarvon support his judgement of the situation and sanction the dispatch of troops to Caernarvon.

169. 1801 18 Feb. LETTER: Richard Edwards of Nanhoron to the bailiffs of Caernarvon. Thanks them for forwarding the resolutions of a meeting of Caernarvon's inhabitants. The responsibility for the safety of the town and the country now lies with Mr. Edward Griffith.

174. 1801 24 Feb.

LETTER: Lord Bulkeley from Stanhope Street, London, to the bailiffs. He is pleased they approve of his actions for securing the return of troops which Mr. Griffith sent away. He is sending them extracts of his previous letters in order to dissociate himself from any allegations that he was instrumental in removing them. He complains that Mr. Griffith treated the alarm very jocosely and was urging their removal on grounds of scarcity with EXTRACT from letter of E. Griffith to Capt. Hooper of the 4th Regiment of Dragoons, 1801, 13 Feb. alleging that Lord Bulkeley had not felt it necessary to give further instructions as he had already expressed his sentiments fully in a letter of 5th.

With COPY OF LETTER of 5th Feb: Lord Bulkeley to Edward Griffith explaining why he asked the troops to support the Civil Authority. Col. Edwards has the authority to send them away if they are not needed. It is difficult for him to take decisions in London so far away. He must rely on the representations of others on the spot. It is his duty to take matters seriously for the county's sake and to err on the side of vigilance
