The Special Collections of Wesley College Bristol

A Catalogue of the Manuscripts and Other Collections

compiled by

Diarmaid MacCulloch

October 1984

A few qualifications and corrections are to be noted. A list of amendments by the compiler, dated 1990 but never incorporated into the catalogue, is placed before the index. It is necessary to cross-check these references found in the main listing. A small number of corrections are appended after the index.

Some items have been added to the collection since 1990. These all relate to the archives of Didsbury College Manchester, Wesley College Headingley, and Wesley College Bristol. Details are available on request.

Enquiries about material in the Special Collections should be addressed to the Librarian (library@wesley-college-bristol.ac.uk). Access to some manuscripts is restricted because of their fragility.

A. Official papers of Didsbury College, Manchester, Didsbury College, Bristol and Wesley College, Bristol

The institutions named above have a continuous history, although Wesley College, Bristol represents an amalgamation with Wesley College, Headingley, which took place in 1968. Apart from the records listed below, the archives of Didsbury College, Bristol and Wesley College, Bristol are not normally available to researchers for forty years. With the exception of the items listed here, archives from the Bristol College are deposited at Bristol City Record Office.

D. General antiquarian collections

The vast majority of these were presented in 1880 to Headingley College, Leeds, by the widow of George Morley junior, surgeon of Leeds, deriving in the main from the collection of his father, the Rev. George Morley, and incorporating the collections of the family of Dr. Adam Clarke, the biographer of John Wesley. A brass plate preserved with the collections commemorates this gift, having formerly been fixed to a cabinet containing the collection (see Fl6 below). The exceptions are items dating after 1880, items with an obvious or stated Didsbury connection and items with a particular provenance stated in the list. In particular, certain of the loose letters relating to Ireland (D5) seem to have been given to Didsbury College 1953-55 by Miss Margaret I. W. Hermiston of Weymouth, Mass., U.S.A, from the papers of Dr. William Butler, missionary in Mexico, and his daughter Clememina Butler. These letters are marked "Hermiston gift" in the descriptions below.
